'Un afraid I can't see so well, ma'am," he said; 'my eyes bether me a good deal.'

The best he could do at this distance was to road the distance was to road the fifty lim. I told him to palm, and in loss than from minutes be one a number of letters on the forty lim. The next time be came I put him nine feet from the caset, and at this distance he road all the letters on the fifty lim. He was no happy and excided over this that I became accided too. I fing

The sync known, walvan, "be said, "fire two sights Epitheed and record any eyes for a long time before I want to bed—and where do you think?—I dept all the sight through without walking up once. Now I think that's grout, maken, because for years I have had innomaia I would doep only a little while; then I would gree up and encole any pipe to pose the time. At a later visit I put him twelve for from the cast, and at this distance also be was able to read the thiny line. When I rold him what he had done he was again greatly pleased and excised.

"You know I'm so much better," he said, 'that I didn't even notice that I was further away than usual. Thank you, ma'am. God bless you, ma'am."

"Bloc malass." he said.

He did this, and after a few minutes his sight cleared up and he saw the letter. After we had finished the practice I again encouraged him to talk, and he told me more about his insomnia.
